

Bookclub

Parenting

Happy Chaos by Soleil Moon Frye

Radio Wayne by Wayne Brady

It's hard to listen to music in the car today it could be explicit language or you might have the safe but over played "the wheels on the bus go round and round" classic but you might not want to listen to it for 6 hours in a row. Listen in to Radio Wayne and be the first to review it.

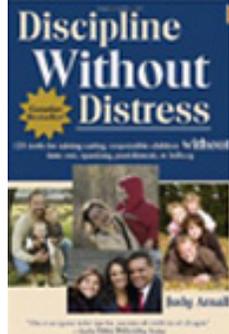

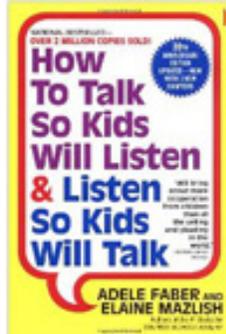

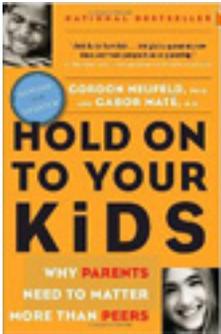

What The Other Mothers Know by Michele Gendelman and Donna Rosenstein

Parent review:

I've read more parenting books over the years than I care to count. Each book had it's points that I related too, while others I just skimmed over. This book has something for everyone. It's funny, honest, and while some may not agree about the many social pressures of child rearing, or feeding your kid macaroni and cheese, they are facts of life. It's a little "out of the box" which appeals to me. I enjoyed it.

Bookclub

Other Recommendations

Just For Fun

Bossypants by Tina Fey
Wonderful snippets of a comedian's life "Bossypants" is a short memoir by comedian Tina Fey.

Finances

The Wealth Cure: Putting Money in Its Place by Hill Harper

Bookclub

Finances cont...

Reviewed by: Marvin H. Feldman

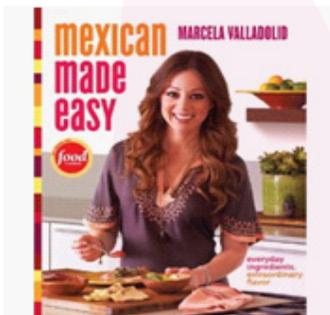

Hill Harper, the New York Times bestselling author and star of the TV series CSI: NY, has just released his fourth book, The Wealth Cure. This is a book on financial literacy, but not in the traditional sense. This book deals with being responsible for your own actions and your attitude toward life's problems, both financial and emotional, and helps you understand your personal wealth factors.

After being diagnosed with thyroid cancer, Hill takes a cross-country train trip to Chicago to have the solitude and time to re-evaluate his life and his value propositions. Hill points out that true wealth is not always money, but it is your friends, your family, your health and your happiness factor. Money in and of itself does not guarantee happiness, but as Hill says, it does help to have your financial world running properly with little or no debt.

In essence, the book points out that we are responsible for our own actions and how we react to the situations we are exposed to. We need to look at problems as opportunities for improvement. It is how we react to these problems that will determine our happiness factor.

Hill Harper walks us through his emotions and reactions to his cancer diagnosis and how it allowed him to rethink and re-evaluate his personal relationships and goals. This book is not for the people looking for the quick fix and easy solutions. It is for those who want to take control of their lives, make the difficult decisions and then take appropriate actions on those decisions.

Food

Mexican Made Easy: Everyday Ingredients, Extraordinary Flavor by Marcela Valladolid

Bring the fresh flavours of Marcela's show home in her new book with 100 delicious Mexican dishes.